Messages of Hope Shadow Mountain Hope Ulch Brown has been blessed to write and publish books of inspirational messages. She considers her writing ability to be a gift from God. This book of poems is but a sample of those messages, and she hopes that you enjoy reading them as much as she enjoyed writing them. In 1982, Hope went through a divorce after a 15-year marriage that was touched by alcoholism. At the time of divorce, she had four children at ages 5, 8, 11 and 13. While raising her children, she was active in their education and served on the Board of Education. When her marriage ended, she was in therapy and a member of a 12 Step Program for Families of Alcoholics. Hope is still an active member 31 years later. As a former teacher, Hope returned to her profession while gaining a Master's Degree in Counseling. In 1986, she began working as a therapist in residential treatment until the treatment center closed in 1992. Today, Hope works in private practice and is a frequent speaker at treatment centers, churches, schools and organizations specializing in the disease of addiction, co-dependency, and recovery. She also moderates spiritual retreats for recovering people. For more information, please visit her website at: <http://www.dailymessagesofhope.com>

 "I wish I had what you have," people often remark after hearing me speak at Christian events. I usually inch my wheelchair closer, smile, and say, jokingly, "Do you mean a neuromuscular disease?" We laugh, but I'm left to wonder: How can I possibly explain that they already have what I have--but don't know it? --Dr. Beverly Rose

 Geobiologist Hope Jahren has spent her life studying trees, flowers, seeds, and soil. Lab Girl is her revelatory treatise on plant life—but it is also a celebration of the lifelong curiosity, humility, and passion that drive every scientist. In these pages, Hope takes us back to her Minnesota childhood, where she spent hours in unfettered play in her father's college laboratory. She tells us how she found a sanctuary in science, learning to perform lab work “with both the heart and the hands.” She introduces us to Bill, her brilliant, eccentric lab manager. And she extends the mantle of scientist to each one of her readers, inviting us to join her in observing and protecting our environment. Warm, luminous, compulsively readable, Lab Girl vividly demonstrates the mountains that we can move when love and work come together.

Messages of Hope WestBow Press "[A] landmark book . . .

Solnit illustrates how the uprisings that begin on the streets can upend the status quo and topple authoritarian regimes” (Vice). A book as powerful and influential as Rebecca Solnit’s Men Explain Things to Me, her Hope in the Dark was written to counter the despair of activists at a moment when they were focused on their losses and had turned their back to the victories behind them—and the unimaginable changes soon to come. In it, she makes a radical case for hope as a commitment to act in a world whose future remains uncertain and unknowable. Drawing on her decades of activism and a wide reading of environmental, cultural, and political history, Solnit argues that radicals have a long, neglected history of transformative victories, that the positive consequences of our acts are not always immediately seen, directly knowable, or even measurable, and that pessimism and despair rest on an unwarranted confidence about what is going to happen next. Now, with a moving new introduction explaining how the book came about and a new afterword that helps teach us how to hope and act in our unnerving world, she brings a new illumination to the darkness of our times in an unforgettable new edition of this classic book. "One of the best books of the 21st century." —The Guardian "No writer has better understood the mix of fear and possibility, peril and exuberance that's marked this new millennium." —Bill McKibben, New York Times-bestselling author of Falter "An elegant reminder that activist victories are easily forgotten, and that they often come in extremely unexpected, roundabout ways." —The New Yorker broadcasting - the Home Service. Despite evacuation, air-raids and the closure of the fledgling TV service, the BBC rose magnificently to the challenge of informing, entertaining and inspiring a nation at war.

 What if God sent you a message every day to help you start off your day? What if every message pertained exactly to your individual experience of life? Would you listen? Would you wait in excitement each night for the rising of the sun the next morning because you knew it would bring another message from God to you? Your prayers have been heard and the answer is now delivered to you, through me. Take a journey with me for the next 80 days were I deliver to you 80 messages from God, specifically to you...For the past two years I have been sending out what is known as "The Message of the Day." The message of the day is a motivational quote inspired to give people courage to face another day with new found hope and optimism. On the surface it sounds simple; look up a motivational quote on Google and send it out to 100 people. However each message from the last 600 or so odd days has come directly and completely from within me. It is as if I have a direct line of communication with a higher power. I am "sent" each message unexpectedly during my day to day activities. The messages come so fast and so often that I was forced to carry around a miniature composition notebook with me. Reaching 100 people is amazing and from time to time people reach out to me to say things like, "thank you so much for sending me these message, they pertain to my life perfectly." Yet this gift which I hold in high regards should be shared with everyone as it is simply magnificent and life changing. What I have decided to do is capture the messages from the last 80 days and convert them into a book. My goal is that the reader wake up each morning and read one page, which equals one message. This should be done for the next 80 days; one message/one page per day. The changes that one will go through over the course of reading and following these messages are nothing less than amazing.
