"Two Women or One? From the Mss. of Dr. Leonard Benary" by Henry Harland opens with Leonard Benary introducing himself to his readers. He claims he isn't a particularly literary man and doesn't usually find much interest in writing. However, when the events of this book occur, he felt compelled to put it in writing. It all starts when he sees what he thinks is a solitary woman on the streets at an odd hour, and what follows is a quirky and intriguing mystery that has Benary and readers questioning everything.

V. 1. The women who traveled west in covered wagons during the 1840s speak through these letters and diaries. Here are the voices of Tamsen Donner and young Virginia Reed, members of the ill-fated Donner party; Patty Sessions, the Mormon midwife who delivered five babies on the trail between Omaha and Salt Lake City; Rachel Fisher, who buried both her husband and her little girl before reaching Oregon. Still others make themselves heard, starting out from different places and recording details along the way, from the mundane to the soul-shattering and spirit-lifting.

You are invited into the imaginary world of elves, faeries, wizards, witches, giants, trolls, and demons. Herein is the tale of a boy and his dog, the eternal struggle of good and evil, and the final, fiery battle of Armageddon. Manfred sets out on his journey to acquire knowledge from a Possessor of Knowledge in the East and finds instead that the journey itself is all that matters for journeys never end. Before he reaches his destination he is drawn into the conflict against the Evil One and, as a now assertive young man, becomes the leader of the forces of good. He is joined in his adventurous travels by his wise and faithful dog Chad, the indomitable Robin, the elf Swane, Princess Beauty, towering Giant, Ama the warrior woman, and Warrior the indefatigable swordsman.

Abigail Jane Scott was seventeen when she left Illinois with her family in the spring of 1852. Her record of the journey west is full of expressive detail: breakfasting in a snowstorm, walking behind the wagons to keep warm, tasting buffalo meat, trying to climb Independence Rock. She meets her future husband, Benjamin Duniway, at the end of the Oregon Trail and, in the years to come, finds fame as a writer and a leader of the suffrage movement in the Northwest. Her grandson, David Duniway, edited her trail diary for Covered Wagon Women. This volume includes the equally vivid diaries of other women who rode the wagons in 1852. Polly Coon of Wisconsin recalls trading with the Indians. Martha Read, starting from Illinois, is particularly alert to the suffering of the animals, noting hundreds of dead cows and horses along the way. Cecilia Adams and Parthenia Blank, twin sisters from Illinois, jointly chronicle their once-in-a-lifetime experience.

The New York Times published his obituary on its front page, referring to him as "a great traveler, both on land and paper." He was a poet, literary critic, translator, and a travel writer of great renown. This is his magisterial account of his voyage up the Nile through Egypt and the Sudan in 1851. Though many 19th century writers wrote about Egypt, Taylor captured exquisite details of life and antiquities and he went much farther up the Nile than most writers. Considered one of the premier travel writers of his day, he was known to the wide public and to many of his famous contemporaries. If you've been to Egypt, you'll treasure his descriptions of familiar places. If you've never been, he'll take you along. For the first time, this long-out-of-print book is available as an affordable, well-formatted book for e-readers and smartphones. Be sure to LOOK INSIDE or download a sample.
